New wave of cool drinks

Here are a few new Caribbean treats to try next time.

The Lemon Crash (Bitter End Yacht Club, Virgin Gorda, BVI). Lemon wedges, sugar syrup, lime juice, Mount Gay Rum. Dana Hokin, an owner: "Back in the early '80s, all of the boats at Bitter End Yacht Club were named after the resort's drinks, or the drinks were named after the boats. The Lemon Crash is the name of the J-24 that my father and I used."

Paddy Got a Sunburn (Gansevoort Turks & Caicos). Guinness Foreign Extra Stout, Canton ginger liqueur, ginger beer, lemon juice. House mixologist Gordon Adams: "This is our play on a traditional Dark and Stormy. We replace the rum with Guinness stout, which is a huge beer favourite among the locals here, and add a little bit of Canton ginger in order to kick up the ginger flavours."

GoldenEye (GoldenEye resort, Oracabessa, Jamaica). Blackwell Fine Jamaican Rum, lime juice, orange juice, pineapple juice, simple syrup. Owner Chris Blackwell: "It reminds me of the simple yet delicious cocktails my mother used to whip up for her friends: Noel Coward, Errol Flynn and Ian Fleming."
